

Audrey Lamprey

Audrey Lamprey, a native of New York State, is a graduate of the Eastman School of Music with a Bachelor of Music in Music Education and Bowling Green State University with a Master of Music in horn performance. Her first experience on the French horn was as a toddler when her father would hold the horn and she would buzz her lips on the mouthpiece. At age 10 Audrey started on the path that has led to opportunities to perform and teach in various colleges across the country.

Presently she teaches at UC Riverside and has recently retired as Lecturer Emeritus from Cal Poly Pomona. She has been a long-time member of the San Bernardino Symphony as well as the Redlands Symphony and Riverside Philharmonic. In addition she freelances in the area and has an active home studio.

Audrey and her husband Bill are parents to three adult children and have five grandchildren. After a life filled with horses, dogs, cats, guinea pigs, pet rats, and tropical fish, they are down to one small but lively dog.
